EIA Hall of Fame

The EIA Hall of Fame recognizes leaders in the waste industry. These individuals have been actively and consistently engaged in the business for over 20 years. They have made significant contributions to the industry through:

- Developing innovations in manufacturing or equipment/product design;
- Designing and implementing novel methods of marketing or conducting business;
- Building better employer-employee and community relations;
- Ensuring safer operations;
- Developing industry standards;
- Protecting the environment;
- Engaging in the legislative and regulatory processes;
- Contributing to civic and philanthropic activities; and/or
- Participating in the National Solid Wastes Management Association, Waste Equipment Technology Association, and Environmental Industry Associations.

A Note on EIA Hall of Fame History

The EIA Hall of Fame began in 1986 in New Orleans when 32 industry giants were honored. Many of these leaders have retired or passed away, yet they all left indelible marks on the industry.

There are currently more than 160 waste industry leaders in the EIA Hall of Fame. The long list of inductees tells us about our past and our future.
